Federal Program: Medicare, Alexandria Neighborhood Health Service

State Program: Medicaid, FAMIS (VA), CHIP (MD)

County Program: Fairfax County: CHCN, MCCP
Montgomery County: Mobile Med

Foundation Program: Kaiser Bridge

Presenter' Bio: Young Jung, MAB, MBA, is the chairman of Hands on Hans, a nonprofit organization that provides charitable and educational opportunities to the community. Jung also serves as the Outdoor Activities Coordinator of the Leadership Enhancement and Activities Development (LEAD), a summer program designated by Hands on Hands to expose youth to hands-on leadership opportunities in public policy, public health, science and medicine. He has over 10 years of experience conducting strategic community outreach, targeting business leaders, executives within the financial management and housing sectors, and civic leaders to provide aid to multicultural communities. Young works as a liaison for organizations and members of the community seeking access to quality health, financial, and housing resources, and implements community planning initiatives. He continues to work closely with the Department of Health, business roundtables, state legislators, and prominent members of the Korean Community in the Washington DC Metropolitan area for the advancement of the community, children and youth. In conjunction with Hands on Hands, Young works as a Financial Strategy Manager for the MassMutual Financial Group, where he facilitates new business procurement and designs financial plans that meet clients' needs.

Soo Yee, M.Ed. is the External Affairs Director serving on the Hands on Hands' Board of Directors. Ms. Yee is responsible for overseeing program development for Hands on Hands, contributing her knowledge and experience from being the Founder and Executive Director of Oxford Academy of Annandale, a highly specialized college preparatory, after-school private learning center launched in 2007. With a background in public health and serving as a community liaison, Soo helps students' to develop their leadership skills and helps them to earn coveted internship and work study opportunities in the areas of public health, medicine, political and environmental sciences, and international policy. She is a health education specialist with nearly 10 years of experience planning, developing, and implementing strategic health education programs targeting diverse populations. Her experience in health promotions, wellness, and facilitating prevention programs provides an avenue for students interested in health to get first-hand experience and access to valuable resources. Soo also conducts third party outreach and builds alliances with key influencers in the private and nonprofit health sectors.
